The Ills of Women Act upon the Nerves like a Firebrand.

The relation of woman's nerves and generative organs is very close; consequently nine tenths of the nervous prostration, nervous despondency, "the blues," sleeplessness, and nervous irritability of women arise from some derangement of the organism which makes her a woman. Herein we prove conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will quickly relieve all this trouble.

Details of a Severe Case Cured in Eau Claire, Wis.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been ailing from female trouble for the past five years. About a month ago I was taken with nervous prostration, accompanied at certain times before + constriction with fearful headaches. I read one of your books, and finding many testimonials of the beneficial effects of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, experienced by lady sufferers, I commenced its use and was happy to state that after using a few bottles I feel like a new woman, aches and pains all gone."

"I am recommending your medicine to many of my friends, and I assure you that you have my hearty thanks for your valuable preparation which has done so much good. I trust all suffering women will use your Vegetable Compound."—MRS. MEXIE TRETZ, 30 First Ave., Eau Claire, Wis. (May 28, 1901).

Nothing will relieve this distressing condition so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it soothes, strengthens, heals and tones up the delicate female organism. It is a positive cure for all kinds of female complaints; that bearing down feeling, backache, displacement of the womb, inflammation of the ovaries, and is invaluable during the change of life, all of which may help to cause nervous prostration.

Read what Mrs. Day says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I will write you a few lines to let you know of the benefit I have received from taking your remedies. I suffered for a long time with nervous prostration, backache, sick headache, painful menstruation, pain in the stomach after eating, and constipation. I often thought I would lose my mind. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and was soon feeling like a new woman. I cannot praise it too highly. It does all that is recommended to do, and more."

"I hope that every one who suffers as I did will give Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies a trial."—MRS. MARIE DAY, Eleonora, Pa. (March 25, 1901).

Free Medical Advice to Women.

Another Case of Nervous Prostration Cured.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Allow me to express to you the benefit I have derived from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before I started to take it I was on the verge of nervous prostration. Could not sleep nights, and I suffered dreadfully from indigestion and headache. I heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's wonderful medicine, and began its use, which immediately restored my health."

"I can heartily recommend it to all suffering women."—MRS. BERTHA E. DEBRINKS, 25½ Lapidate St., San Francisco, Cal. (May 21, 1901).

DWYER DIED LIKE A COWARD

The Head of the Latest Yaqui Rebellion

An American Friend Who Had a Grievance Against Mexico and Wreaked It Upon Women and Children.

La Cananea, Sonora, Mexico, Jan. 20.

(Special correspondence of The Republican.)—Colonel Pesqueira, son of former Governor Pesqueira, has arrived in Cananea with news from the lower Yaqui valley. The chief item of interest brought by the colonel is that relating to the hanging of John Dwyer at one time known in Colorado and Arizona as the Yaqui Kid, but of late known as El Renegado. Colonel Pesqueira witnessed the hanging of Dwyer at Cananea.

According to Colonel Pesqueira Dwyer was captured by the troops of the Fourth battalion near Bacum. He was kept a close prisoner in the military blockhouse at Bacum for twenty hours before execution, the official in command at Bacum, Colonel Garcia Pena, being compelled to wait for orders from General Lorenzo Torres as to the disposition of the captive.

Through fear that the Yaquis might attempt to rescue Dwyer, General Lorenzo Torres sent orders by telegraph for his immediate execution.

During the night previous to the execution Dwyer spent much time conversing with Colonel Garcia Pena. Colonel Pena derived much information as a result of this.

Dwyer could not sleep during the night. He displayed great cowardice. At times he shook like a leaf. He offered to betray the Yaquis in return for a pardon. At one time in the most secret language he begged Colonel Pena to send him to the penal colony on the island of Don Juan de Ulloa for lifetime in order that his life might be spared.

Colonel Pena ascertained that Dwyer was a man of little education, ignorant and of criminal propensities. He pretended that he could speak Spanish and French and read and write those languages perfectly, but he really could not speak even English fluently. Dwyer did not speak a good word for his own mother, even.

When taken out for execution at the break of day on the 26th of December Dwyer was in the last stages of nervous exhaustion. It was necessary for the soldiers to support him in order to prevent him from escaping. Colonel Pena found it necessary to abandon his intention of shooting the much-feared renegado because of the latter's extreme cowardice.

Dwyer was hanged to a tree at a distance of 200 feet from the garrison building. He was dragged to the place of execution by the five soldiers who had been selected to shoot him. The body was still hanging when Colonel Pesqueira left Cananea.

The starting of the present Yaqui war is laid at the door of Dwyer. In February, 1899, with five Yaquis he left the town of Chuchubachi on the headwaters of the Yaqui river and traveled down the river to Medano. With the assistance of his Yaqui companions he spread canards throughout the country for the purpose of fomenting rebellion. When he started from Chuchubachi the state of Sonora was enjoying profound peace but when he reached Medano war prevailed throughout the Yaqui valley.

Dwyer declared that he assisted the Yaquis in order to revenge himself upon the government of Mexico for imprisoning him thirty-six hours in Ciudad Juarez and five days in El Paso without cause. He accused American Consul Hendrick of Juarez of seeking to aid the Mexicans to ruin him. After starting the Yaqui revolution he stayed with it. He encouraged the Yaquis to continue the struggle by promising them assistance from the United States. In this way he was chiefly instrumental

In causing a loss to Mexico of $150,000,000 in three years.

Dwyer had as black a mind as a human being could have. He is best described by the saying "Once an enemy always an enemy." He never forgave an injury and never gave an enemy credit for anything. For instance, he insisted that General Lorenzo Torres was a coward, although there is not a man in Sonora who dares say that General Lorenzo Torres knows what fear is. So implacable was the enmity of Dwyer for Lorenzo Torres that he was the only man who ever denied that Torres was brave; yet Dwyer never tried to come within reach of the Mexican general.

Dwyer, renegade as he was, was as cruel as he was cowardly. His cruelty was that of a madman. It knew no bounds. He showed cruelty to those who fell into his power as he showed cowardice to those in whose power he himself fell. The strongest point in the Renegado was his invention of canards and cruelties. Being a woman-hater, it was he who supplied the Yaquis with an excuse for the killing of Mexican women. When many Mexican women were falling into the hands of the Yaquis, in order to destroy those women, for his hatred of Mexicans included women and children, he set afloat in the camps of the Yaquis a story that General Lorenzo Torres was deliberately sending out Mexican women, of the Mexican soldiers, to be captured by the Yaquis for the purpose of spreading disease among the Yaquis. As many of the captive Mexican women were found to be diseased the renegado easily managed to issue an order that all Mexican women should be put to death as soon as captured by the Yaquis. Owing to the heinousness of the purpose that Dwyer charged the Mexican women with the Yaquis overlooked the ignominy of putting the women to death.

Dwyer committed or rather had perpetrated upon Mexican women two outrages which can never be forgiven or forgotten by the Mexicans. On one occasion two Mexican women fell into the hands of El Renegado at Chumimpaco. Instead of ordering the women put to death he had them dragged by horses through the cactus and pethaya. When the breasts were torn from the women and they were otherwise terribly lacerated he sent them back to rejoin the Mexican army. They died after rejoining the Mexicans.

On another occasion Dwyer captured three Mexican women and an infant on the road near Torin. The women had baskets of food with them for soldiers in the army. Dwyer had the captives taken to a spot where an aged Yaqui who had committed many atrocities had been hanged by the Mexican soldiers to a tree in five days of road. He had the body of the Yaqui cut down and had the three women and little baby hanged, in the same place. When the bodies of the victims were cold he had the rope around the neck of the mother of the baby loosened so that the toes might touch the ground and then placed the corpse of the baby in the arms of its mother so as to make it appear that the death of the baby was caused by its own mother.

Among other crimes of which the Renegado was guilty was the murder of Jack Gleeson, an Arizona prospector, near Guasmas. Gleeson was friendly to the Mexicans but never assisted them against the Yaquis. About four months ago he was captured by Yaquis and brought into a camp where the Renegado was. His hands were bound behind his back and he was perfectly helpless. The Renegado coolly walked up to him, placed a pistol to his head and blew his brains out. The Yaquis had no time to interfere.

Dwyer is accused with being directly implicated in the killing of Superintendent Sullivan near San Marcial two months ago. It was he who placed the name of Sullivan upon the black-list of the Yaquis. It was the Renegado who invented the system of assassination that is being followed by the Yaquis. He introduced among the Yaquis the black-list. Upon this black-list is placed the names of all persons, Mexican or American or peaceful Yaquis, who have been known to pronounce themselves against the hostile Yaquis. Any person connected with the Yaqui revolution can send in a name to be placed on the black-list. Peaceful Yaquis in the towns keep watch upon everybody and supply most of the names. The names and information go before the council of war and are passed upon by that body. Any person whose name appears on the black-list is liable to assassination. Dwyer had the names of Superintendent Naugle of the Sonora railroad, General G. B. Egger and many other prominent men placed upon the list. Men were black-listed for simply discharging Yaquis from employment or even passing a remark not to the liking of the Yaquis.

It is true that Dwyer was popular in Arizona. He was driven out of many towns in Arizona because of his machinations. The citizens of Bisbee were on the point of lynching him at one time.

Dwyer appears to have held Santa Teresa completely in his control. He used her name to excite the Yaquis without her consent but she dared not stop him from doing so. The last work of Renegado Dwyer was the hatching of the conspiracy at Alamos, discovered and frustrated by the Mexican authorities last December. Through this conspiracy he expected to cause the uprising of the evicted squatters of the states of Sinaloa, Durango and Sonora and bring about the alliance of the Yaquis and Mayos and ultimately cause the amalgamation of all these forces against Mexico. Success would have crowned his plan if it were not for a mistake of Llanas, his Yaqui agent in the work.

After the discovery of the Alamos conspiracy Dwyer was run down and captured. He will prove to be a great loss to the Yaquis inasmuch as he was the only person through whom they were connected with Americans, "their friends."

Mrs. Nurich—Mrs. Betterdaze told me she was going to send her boy to you for a job.

Mr. Nurich—Yes, she sent him, and I turned him down proper. You'd oughter seen the high-handed letter she sent with him—said she sent him to me because he "must have work for a mere pittance." The nerve of her callin' me names like that!—Philadelphia Press.

Amusements

The two trumpet soloists of the Royal Italian band are among the greatest Italy has ever produced. It is well known among musicians that trumpets are much more difficult to master than cornets and that for playing the leads of a band they are much superior, having a clearer, purer tone and greater carrying power. The two solo trumpets of this band are in the hands of two great artists, Signor Domenico Palma and Signor Eladio De Mitris.

Signor Palma came to this country as second trumpet player in the original Banda Rossa. He was but twenty years of age, but since then he has made such strides in his art that today he is recognized as a trumpet soloist without an equal in America. He is perhaps the greatest artist on that instrument Italy has ever sent to America. So great is his unassuming modesty that probably but few persons realize that when they are listening to the trumpet playing of Signor Palma, they are hearing something quite out of the ordinary. Indeed, something unusually fine in the line of wind instrument playing. This little Italian gentleman is an artist by nature, and his schooling in his native land was given him by no less a person than Cavaliere Riva himself, who recognized Palma's great ability when he first heard him play at the age of fifteen. Palma's exquisitely human vocal tone is beyond criticism, while his phrasing and interpretation leave nothing to be wished for.

Should Signor Palma decide to make a specialty of high class American songs and ballads, with a band accompaniment such as the great Riva can give him he would endear himself to the American public as no other trumpet player has ever done. No amount of gymnastics and pyrotechnics can take the place of that warm luscious tone of Palma, and his depth of musical expression.

Signor Eladio De Mitris is one of the great trumpet celebrities of Italy, his name over there being known from the Alps to the Nile. His solo parts in nearly all the great Italian bands, and is undoubtedly a wonder. His tone is argentine and dramatic and he possesses a command of respiration little short of phenomenal. Signor De Mitris as his name and features both indicate is of Greek origin and is a decidedly handsome man. His solos in the great operatic selections played by the Italian band are those assigned to the dramatic sopranos in the opera as sung.

In this particular class of work De Mitris can not be excelled. Eladio's famous Italian band will give two performances at the Morris theater on Wednesday, January 23. Prices for the matinee will be 50c, 75c and $1. Prices for the evening will be 50c, $1 and $1.50. Sale opens Saturday morning at Goodman's.

DEBATING NOT "GONE OUT."

A good illustration of the possibilities for effective public speaking in these latter days is found in Senator Vest's brilliant debate last week on the coal duty. His speech was universally read and enlarged before 1909, and the Hudson joined by an adequate waterway to the great lakes. That would best mark the anniversary. Give us the enlarged canal as the chief monument, and we will take out the rest of the celebration in fireworks and river pageants.—Harpers Weekly.

THE CHILDREN ENJOY

Life out of doors and out of the games which they play and the enjoyment which they receive and the efforts which they make, comes the greater part of that healthful development which is so essential to their happiness when grown. When a laxative is needed the remedy which is given to them to cleanse and sweeten and strengthen the internal organs on which it acts, should be such as physicians would sanction, because its component parts are known to be wholesome and the remedy itself free from every objectionable quality. The one remedy which physicians and parents, well-informed, approve and recommend and which the little ones enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects, is—Syrup of Figs—and for the same reason it is the only laxative which should be used by fathers and mothers.

Syrup of Figs is the only remedy which acts gently, pleasantly and naturally without griping, irritating, or nauseating and which cleanses the system effectually, without producing that constipated habit which results from the use of the old-time cathartics and modern imitations, and against which the children should be so carefully guarded. If you would have them grow to manhood and womanhood, strong, healthy and happy, do not give them medicines, when medicines are not needed, and when nature needs assistance in the way of a laxative, give them only the simple, pleasant and gentle—Syrup of Figs.

Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the combination of the laxative principles of plants with pleasant aromatic syrups and juices, but also to our original method of manufacture and as you value the health of the little ones, do not accept any of the substitutes which unscrupulous dealers sometimes offer to increase their profits. The genuine article may be bought anywhere of all reliable druggists at fifty cents per bottle. Please to remember, the full name of the Company—without highly organized newspapers, and so looked chiefly to congress for enlightenment on political questions. But Senator Vest has shown that the skilled debater still has his place in public life.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.—is printed on the front of every package.

In order to get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine only.

It is to be noted, however, that the senator was addressing the country rather than his fellow senators. He might have talked to them indefinitely without breaking the fetters of their party discipline. But they saw that the country had listened to him and had been aroused. They were forced into action by the weight of public opinion.

It is this possibility of addressing the nation over the heads of senators and representatives which will always make the ready speaker a force in congress. So far as concerns the house which he is addressing, he is beating the air. What it will do has been determined in advance by a few of the leaders. They will not alter their plans for anything he may have to say to them. But his real audience is made up of the readers of newspapers throughout the country. If he succeeds in moving these outside readers he may expect to turn the course of legislation. The decisions of caucus or steering committee may be upset by a single speech to which there is an unmistakable response throughout the country. After Senator Proctor had spoken on conditions in Cuba it was useless for Speaker Reed and President McKinley to try to restrain congress. Congressional debate is still to be reckoned an effective instrument of attack.—Kansas City Star.

—Washington Star.

SINCE HENDRICK HUDSON.

Some of the neighbors begin to talk about the approach of the three-hundredth anniversary of the discovery of the Hudson river, and to wonder by what sort of high jinks it will be celebrated. It is six years off yet. Hendrik Hudson came in 1609, and rather late in the season. A world's fair is spoken of as a suitable effort to make a date so notable, but another American world's fair is hardly to be planned until St. Louis has finished hers. Ten years is not too long a time to come between fairs of the first magnitude in this country. Moreover, the Hudson celebration would doubtless come to New York, and New York is ill off for fair grounds, and will probably prefer something less laborious and protracted, and, if possible, more amusing. Six years will do a good deal to make New York commodious and comfortable, provided its population does not outrun its struggles to take care of it. The Holland society has undertaken to make suggestions about the Hudson celebration, and its plans will doubtless be influenced by its forecast of the state of development that the town will have reached in the year in which the plans are to be carried out. Possibly the Erie canal will be reconstructed and enlarged before 1909, and the Hudson joined by an adequate waterway to the great lakes. That would best mark the anniversary. Give us the enlarged canal as the chief monument, and we will take out the rest of the celebration in fireworks and river pageants.—Harpers Weekly.

THE SUPREME COURT

A Recess Taken Yesterday Until February 23.

The supreme court yesterday took a recess until February 23 when it was understood no business would be considered except the application for a writ of certiorari in the case of the board of supervisors of Graham county who issued certificates of election to two justices of the peace in Movoni precinct which is entitled to only one.

The case of Charles B. McLean vs. the Territory of Arizona was submitted on briefs. This is an incident of the Keystone Mining company litigation. This is a quo warrant proceeding instituted by S. H. Sechrist to displace the officers of the company elected at Pittsburg. This is the case which has attracted almost national interest by the arrest of Dr. J. M. Evans at Youngstown, Ohio, last fall at the instance of McLean and his associates.

In the case of Thomas F. Wilson against N. O. Murphy, G. W. Vickers, T. W. Pemberton and D. Heyman, Eugene S. Ives, attorney for the appellant filed a motion to deny the motion of the appellee to dismiss the appeal and affirm the judgment of the lower court on the short record.

The case of Axel W. Hallenberg vs. the Coche Grande Mining company and others came up. It was ordered that on March 20 the case would be set for hearing. In the matter of the Phoenix Electric Light company, appellant vs. Thomas D. Bennett, appellee, arguments were made by Messrs. Herndon and Chalmers for the appellant and by Messrs. Baker and Franklin for the appellee.

AMERICAN DIALECTS.

Excellent is the play of the Yale department of experimental psychology to collect the American dialects by means of voice recording machines. At last we shall be able to catch a dialect as it falls, to get the real tang and edge of it, and to avoid artificial and manufactured forms supposed to be dialect.

The boys say the meanest man in Atchison is a grocer who puts spikes in the end of his delivery wagon to keep them from hanging on.

MISS FAY LEE,

President of the Shakespearean Club, Kansas City.

"Your booklet came to my home like a message of health when I had suffered with headache, backache and bearing-down pains. I was weak, nervous and hysterical and had not consulted any doctor, thinking it would pass away in time, but instead I found that the pains increased and were more frequent. I decided to try Wine of Cardui and in a short time was much improved. It seemed to act like a charm. I kept up the treatment and the result was most satisfactory. Words fail to express my gratitude for the suffering that is now saved me. I am in fine health, physically and mentally. I can only say 'thank you,' but there is much more in my heart for you."

nervous tension. The nerves soon begin to give way under the strain. You perhaps jump at an unusual disturbance, or laugh or weep, hysterically, at no apparent cause. That is what Miss Fay Lee, 603½ North Seventh Street, Kansas City, Kansas, was coming to when she rescued herself by taking Wine of Cardui. The Wine made her a strong, healthy woman again, as it has made a million other women strong and healthy. By inducing regular menstruation the entire system is relieved of the terrible wasting drains. The ligaments which hold the womb in place are strengthened by a healthy flow and that organ is returned to its normal position. Returning health is the result. This is what Wine of Cardui has done for thousands of the best women in America.

If you need advice write The Ladies' Advisory Department, The Chattanooga Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn., describing all your symptoms freely, and a letter of advice will be sent you. Secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist to-day.

WINE of CARDUI A million suffering women have found relief in Wine of Cardui.
